He is an Armenian—this little Vartan. He is well and strong now. But.in his eyes you still can read some-thing of the frightful agony that is overwhelming the Near East.

The story of any one of these poor little refugees is the story of all. Hungry always; always tired. Shoeless, almost clothesless. Reating never. Only shuddering fear, ceaseless tramping, con tant fleeing from death.

It is estimated that millions of people were massa-cred, and that four millions, mostly women and children, are homeless, starving, crying to this great country for aid. The orphans of tender years alone are numbered

As your little ones run joyously, safely around in free and happy homes, won't you hear the cry of these poor, helples children in the stricken land of Armenia, Syria, Greece and Persia? You are part of the great sympathetic heart of America. They are relying on YOU. Do your share.
